Forecast For Highland & Eilean Siar
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Tuesday 11 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Cloudy morning with occasional rain, brighter in afternoon.

Today:
Some brightness across Caithness at first but generally a cloudy morning with outbreaks of occasionally heavy rain. Brighter conditions with sunny spells reach Lochaber and the Great Glen towards midday and edge north this afternoon. Feeling warm in any sunshine. Maximum temperature 15 deg C (59 deg F).

Tonight:
Patchy rain across Lewis soon clearing this evening with some late sunshine elsewhere. Cloud and outbreaks of showery rain spread north through the early hours. Minimum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Wednesday:
Rather cloudy with outbreaks of showery rain through much of the day. Some bright or sunny spells may develop across southern parts along with a few heavy, perhaps thundery, showers. Maximum temperature 15 deg C (59 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Continuing showery with clear or sunny spells, the showers, especially in western parts, heavy at times and perhaps merging into longer spells of rain.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.